

Air one is a daily encouragement to me and thousands of other local listeners. I believe it is a public service, and it would be a shame to lose such a cool and positive station. If Air one were displaced by an LPFM broadcaster providing other programming, I would lose my #1 station. I fear that the station would not be able to continue to run across the country and would have to shut down because they would be unable to fund multiple small stations. I think part of the success of air one is the versatility of the station. It is amazing that one station is being shared across the U.S. and affecting millions. Air One helps people turn their lives around. Many people have stopped lifestyles of drug abuse and addiction through the station. Many others are encouraged throughout the day by hearing the stories of other people whose lives have been turned around. Air one also provides cool music that's hard and alternative, yet with a positive message. It's hard to get a good station like that these days. I hope you don't displace it with an LPFM broadcaster.
